Foreword

I've been a human all my life. Sometimes I like to do computery things. Please mind the footnotes.[1]

I have some interest in espresso, mixology, zymurgy, mycoculture, fountain pens, and the formal sciences. I'm a bit of an AFOL[2] (but not quite enough to take out a second mortgage). I'm partial to declarative, functional, and effect-oriented programming (including IaC and CM).

Please see your associated cover letter for more details (if applicable). References and private personal project samples available on request. Public repositories and open source contributions are available though a combination of GitHub, GitLab, git.clan.lol, and scattered across bug trackers and mailing lists.

Favourite `fortune` Quote

> [I plan] to see, hear, touch, and destroy everything in my path, including beets, rutabagas, and most random vegetables, but excluding yams, as I am absolutely terrified of yams…
> Actually, I think my fear of yams began in my early youth, when many of my young comrades pelted me with same for singing songs of far-off lands and deep blue seas in a language closely resembling that of the common sow. My psychosis was further impressed into my soul as I reached adolescence, when, while skipping through a field of yams, light-heartedly tossing flowers into the stratosphere, a great yam-picking machine tore through the fields, pursuing me to the edge of the great plantation, where I escaped by diving into a great ditch filled with a mixture of water and pig manure, which may explain my tendency to scream, "Here come the Martians! Hide the eggs!" every time I have pork. But I digress. The fact remains that I cannot rationally deal with yams, and pigs are terrible conversationalists.
